THREE DISNEY CHANNEL STARS REMEMBER WALT

Helen Hayes, still predictably called "the first lady of the American theater" even though an allergy to theater dust forced her retirement from the stage 15 years ago, has no use for labels.

"Lately they've been calling me the veteran actress too," the 83-year-old star laughs. "That bothers me so much I've made up my own label: the great white goddess of the American stage. Sometimes I call myself the holy cow."

Miss Hayes met Walt Disney while she was appearing in "Victoria Regina." They struck up a lifelong friendship, and after she withdrew from the theater Disney starred her in "Herbie Rides Again," "One of Our Dinosaurs Is Missing" and "Candleshoe," which premieres this month on The Disney Channel.

Miss Hayes remembers her first visit to the Disney studio in 1937. "Walt took me around. He had them show a Mickey Mouse film for me, and he told me rather shyly but a little proudly that he was the voice of Mickey.

"He loved Mickey with a passion. Donald Duck had achieved great success by that time, and was kind of a favorite. As we sat there watching the film Walt said, 'Of course you know Donald is the big thing now, but it won't last. Mickey is forever. He'll have his moments in the shade, but he'll always come out in bright lights again.' That was 47 years ago and Walt was right, wasn't he?"

Alfred Hitchcock, John Ford, Walt Disney. They were the moviemakers Vera Miles frequently worked for during her early years in Hollywood. Acknowledged individualists, Hitchcock was austere, Ford autocratic. Vera remembers Disney:

"When we were doing 'Follow Me, Boys!,' we filmed outdoors at night on the back lot. It was very cold; we'd sit around salamanders to keep warm. Almost every evening, out of the darkness and the shadows, would come Walt. He'd sit around the salamanders, put his feet up, and just be with us...That was extraordinary for a head of a studio. He cared, and his involvement with his studio was total.

"He once said to me, 'Vera, do you know why that fence is painted green?' I said no, and he explained, 'It's green because I said to paint it green.' He was the final authority at his studio. There were no politics to be played there. All you had to do was please Walt. He was one of a kind."

Vera made six pictures for Disney, including "Those Calloways" (see page 16). Nine years ago she moved from a ranch in the San Fernando Valley to a mountain home at Big Bear Lake.

"I like changes in weather. We get snow and springtime and all those wonderful things, yet it's only two hours from the city. I don't like to travel that much, but making films now means going on location. I've just finished pictures in London and Texas, I'm home again, and Big Bear looks heavenly to me."

Linda Evans has had two distinct careers in Hollywood, separated by her absence from show biz during her six-year marriage to producer John Derek.

Today Linda is known worldwide as the warm and charming Krystle Carrington in the "Dynasty" teleseries. Once she was a shy Hollywood High School student who took up acting to overcome her fear of public speaking.

"It's funny how things go in cycles," says Linda. "For one of my first TV roles, in 'Bachelor Father,' I played a 15-year-old with a crush on John Forsythe. Now, 20 years later, I'm playing his wife in 'Dynasty.'"

Linda was still a teenager when Walt Disney gave her her first starring role as Brandon de Wilde's girl friend Bridie in "Those Calloways" (airing this month on The Disney Channel).

"He borrowed me from M-G-M, where I was under contract," she recalls. "Like everybody else, I'd grown up with Disney films and loved them. I remember him as being friendly and amusing, yet somewhat reserved. Other people called him Walt, and I knew he liked that, but I was among the younger ones on the lot. We called him Mr. Disney, and that's how I think of him today."

Linda resumed her career in "Tom Horn" opposite Steve McQueen, and hit the big time with "Dynasty" in 1981. Though her tremendous current popularity might belie it, Linda claims she has no driving ambition as an actress. She prefers the comfort of her Beverly Hills home, where she collects cookbooks and prepares original dishes like crabmeat enchiladas and peach heaven delight.

For fans of "Dynasty" and Disney Channel viewers who'll see her as a teenager in "Those Calloways," Linda is something of a peachy heaven delight herself.

DISNEY'S ACADEMY AWARD-WIN

Arctic rabbit is alert for danger

Flock of ptarmigans scavenge for food

A magnificent Arctic setting and intimate glimpses into the lives of animals known previously only in myth and legend — polar bears, lemmings, caribou — make "White Wilderness" something special even for Walt Disney's acclaimed True-Life Adventure series.

The film's appearance in 1958 culminated a decade in the studio's history during which a dozen True-Lifes garnered eight Academy Awards. The scope and complexity of "White Wilderness" exemplifies the talent and courage of the innovators who created these films.

"...Walt Disney had a contract with his audience never to get dull."

Getting nose-to-nose with the animals — and doing so under the most adverse conditions — was an enormously demanding task. A dozen wildlife photographers were dispatched with over a ton of equipment to various remote Arctic locations. What they brought back far exceeded any Arctic tale ever filmed.

James Algar wrote and directed nearly all the True-Life Adventures.

He has now retired and lives in Carmel, California.

"Walt disliked the word documentary," Algar recalls. "We weren't environmentalists or missionaries at the studio. We were basically story-tellers, men of the theater. And like all great entertainers, Walt had a contract with his audience never to get dull.

"Perhaps the best decision Walt made was to omit any reference to humans — not a footprint or a power pole would distract from the 'True Life' of the animals."

Erwin Verity, production manager on most of the True-Lifes, describes

FORGETTABLE..."WHITE WILDERNESS"
NING TRUE-LIFE ADVENTURE

how this decision came about.

"In a rough cut of 'Seal Island'—the first of these films—we showed hunters surrounding the herd and driving them inland. Not five minutes into the screening Walt began to tap impatiently on the arm of his chair. When you heard that, boy, you knew you were in trouble."

Verity was responsible for getting supplies in to the naturalist photographers and getting their film out. He mentions Hugh Wilmar, whose first assignment was on "White Wilderness."

"Wilmar was an outstanding photographer. The rougher the conditions, the better he liked it. He was working at the top of Hudson's Bay when polar bears began moving in on walrus herds, their summer prey. Hugh and his Eskimo guide Mikituk got set up and filmed this bear diving beneath a natural ice bridge between the floes.

"...Lucky for him Mikituk was along or we'd have had one less photographer."

"On one dive the bear disappeared. Wilmar had his eye in the camera and never saw it come up behind him. Lucky for him Mikituk was along or we'd have had one less photographer."

Despite its originality and glorious photography, the first True-Life Adventure received a cool welcome from film exhibitors and distributors, who failed to see its box office potential.

Algar and Verity speak of the special thrill when "Seal Island" won its Academy Award in 1949. The public understood from the first that these films would delight generations to come—as they have, and as they continue to do on The Disney Channel.

FIVE MILE CREEK

(Louise Caire Clark, Rod Mullinar, Liz Burch, Michael Caton, Priscilla Weems, Martin Lewis, Gus Mercurio, with Jay Kerr as Con Madigan)

Maggie Scott's (Louise Caire Clark) long search for her husband finally ends, but when Adam Scott (Jonathan Frakes) appears at Five Mile Creek he has a bullet in his side and a price on his head. Their reunion leaves Maggie distressed and baffled about her future in Australia.

Adam's arrival highlights Episode 7 ("Gold Fever," premiering February 1), in which Con Madigan (Jay Kerr) is shot by nugget hungry bushrangers. Kate Wallace (Liz Burch) nurses Con back to health, and special feelings stir between them.

Episode 8 ("Annie," beginning February 15) deals with the hardships of childbirth in the outback. Annie Carruthers (Cheryl Walton) arrives alone at The Haven just as she is going into labor. Maggie serves as midwife at the delivery, while Con searches for Annie's husband.

These compelling stories—filled with warm human emotions and the challenge of pioneer life—are only the beginning. The series has been extended for another 13 episodes. Don't miss a single one, exclusively on The Disney Channel.

SAMANTHA SMITH GOES TO WASHINGTON... CAMPAIGN '84

Samantha Smith is only 11, but she has the nose for news that makes great journalists.

Last year Samantha sent a letter to Yuri Andropov at the Kremlin asking, among other questions, "Why do you want to conquer the whole world, or at least our country?" The Soviet leader responded by describing his country as peace-loving, and inviting her to come over and see for herself.

"I had to do my homework. Not for school, but for the interviews ahead."

The two weeks that Samantha and her parents spent in Russia became a media event. Facing reporters, Samantha proved to be as quick with answers as she is with questions. Now, having returned from Japan where she addressed a symposium on Science and Technology, Samantha takes on the task of interviewing Democratic presidential candidates exclusively for The Disney Channel.

A bold assignment for a sixth grader in Manchester, Maine! "First," Samantha says, "I had to do my homework. Not for school, but for the interviews ahead. I never thought of becoming a political reporter. I was more interested in literature, art, history and social science.

Samantha Smith visits Soviet children's camp

"But I am very curious about persons in public life. I met people in Russia I'll never forget, like Valentina Tereshkova, the first woman in space. In Japan I talked to people who are concerned about things like the future of children in the 21st century.

"So when I said I'd go out for The Disney Channel, I thought a lot about what I would ask the candidates. I wondered, for instance, how they would feel about a woman running for president. Or someone from a minority group."

Samantha did her homework well. Enjoy her wide-ranging, provocative interviews this month as an exclusive feature on The Disney Channel.

From Disney, With Love

Love's magic spell is everywhere in this 90-minute animated celebration of romance.

Music, songs and enchanting moments from Disney classics go all the way back to when knighthood was in flower.

Twosomes who have been pixilated, twitter-pated, fascinated and infatuated are shown at the time they were struck by Cupid's arrow.

Mickey and Minnie's hearts entwine at a vaudeville show, where Gay Nineties songs set a sentimental mood. Donald dreams of marriage to Daisy Duck. Pluto falls for Dinah, a cute dachshund.

Lady and Tramp share a candlelight dinner while their waiter serenades them with "Bella Notte." Prince Phillip and Princess Aurora waltz to "Once Upon a Dream" from "Sleeping Beauty."

Many other animated stars are entranced by romance in this delightful musical valentine presented exclusively on The Disney Channel.

Paul sings from the glittering set with full orchestra

Paul welcomes Cheryl

Each week Paul Anka and a new celebrity guest star in a half-hour of musical-variety entertainment in this Disney Channel exclusive.

Singer Tony Orlando and Paul pay tribute to their favorite songwriters, performing Neil Diamond's "Sweet Caroline," Bobby Darin's "Dream Lover" and a medley of 1960s hits.

Canadian Shari Ulrich sings an original composition entitled "The One And Only" and duets with Paul, a native of Ottawa. The spirit of fun prevails as orchestra leader Don Costa and a trombone quartet back Paul on a slow ballad — except the trombonists keep "blowing it."

Helen Reddy chats with Paul about the continuing reactions to her feminist anthem "I Am Woman," then they sing "One Man Woman" together. Helen is already a member of The Disney Channel's family of celebrities: she co-hostessed a week of EPCOT Magazine last year and made her Disney debut in "Pete's Dragon."

With Mardi Gras just around the bend, it's off to Rio de Janeiro for a colorful carnival bursting with vitality and rhythm. Paul sings "Rio" surrounded by the beplumed, bespangled Jim Hibbert Dancers. Versatile Don Costa provides solo guitar accompaniment for Paul on a series of sambas.

Mickey Mouse Club

Jimmie Dodd and the original Mouseketeers get together weekdays for songs, cartoons, adventures and plenty of fun.

Two new serials begin this month. "The Hardy Boys" are young sleuths trying to solve "The Mystery of the Applegate Treasure." "Boys of the Western Sea" shows a 16-year-old orphan struggling to keep his family together in a small Scandinavian fishing village. This nine-episode Danish production was acquired especially for the "Mickey Mouse Club."

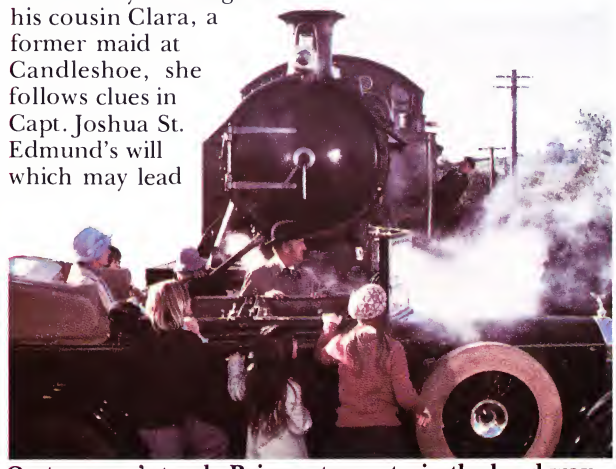
CANDLESHOE

(David Niven, Helen Hayes, Jodie Foster, Leo McKern)

Casey Brown (Jodie Foster) is a 14-year-old streetwise orphan who believes "all the world's a racket." English con man Harry Bundage (Leo McKern) enlists her in a scheme to relieve Lady Gwendolyn St. Edmund (Helen Hayes) of her fortune.

Priory defends Candleshoe from treasure hunters

Posing as a long-lost granddaughter (she even has the proper scars and allergies), Casey charms her way into Candleshoe, the St. Edmund family estate. Coached by Bundage and his cousin Clara, a former maid at Candleshoe, she follows clues in Capt. Joshua St. Edmund's will which may lead to pirate treasure.



On treasure's track, Priory stops a train the hard way

Lady Gwendolyn, with only her loyal butler Priory (David Niven) to defend her, is no match for this conspiracy. In addition, she is near bankruptcy and Candleshoe is about to be sold. The efforts of Priory and a houseful of children from a nearby orphanage keep the estate afloat.

Casey snoops about for the hidden gold, but soon succumbs to this appealing family and reveals the plot to them. Lady Gwendolyn begins to believe that Casey may be a genuine granddaughter after all. They join forces to save Candleshoe.

Niven pops up everywhere in a multiple role as the butler, chauffeur, gardener and friendly neighbor who keep Lady Gwendolyn in the dark about her sorry state of affairs.

"Candleshoe" was filmed at Compton Wynyates, a turreted 16th century Tudor mansion in Warwickshire, England.

Welcome To Pooh Corner

It's Valentine's Day at Pooh Corner and poor Pooh's been so busy helping his friends, he hasn't made any cards or treats for them. He's sure there'll be no valentines for him, but the others have a lovely surprise in store!

The fun of trying new things and sharing good times are among the other valuable lessons in living pre-schoolers get from Pooh and his puppetronic pals. And that's just part of the action! There's also plenty of lively music, sing-alongs with televised words and learning games at Pooh's Thoughtful Spot that teach such things as color, size and shape recognition.

Rusty, Rinty and Lt. Masters at Fort Apache

THE ADVENTURES OF RIN-TIN-TIN

(Lee Aaker, James Brown, Joe Sawyer, Rin-Tin-Tin)

Renegade Indians, ruthless outlaws and demented prospectors keep Rinty, Rusty and the horse soldiers at Fort Apache busy.

Romance even rears its curly head when an old flame of Sgt. O'Hara's arrives with a party of single girls looking for husbands.

But a real bombshell explodes when Rusty is identified as the grandson of a wealthy matriarch in Prairie City. Lt. Masters sends Rusty and Rinty to her, unaware of the surprises ahead.

Mon.-Fri., 6:30 p.m.

GOOD MORNING, MICKEY!

Even viewers who aren't naturally morning people can get off to a good start with GOOD MORNING, MICKEY PART I, a rollicking half-hour of cartoon fun. Mickey, Donald, Goofy and the gang join forces in classic chucklers like "Dog Watch," "The Greener Yard," "The Pied Piper" and others.

After a MOUSERCISE warm-up and workout with Kellyn, it's back on the laugh-track as GOOD MORNING, MICKEY PART II presents more treats like "Mickey and the Beanstalk" and "Pluto's Quin-puplets."

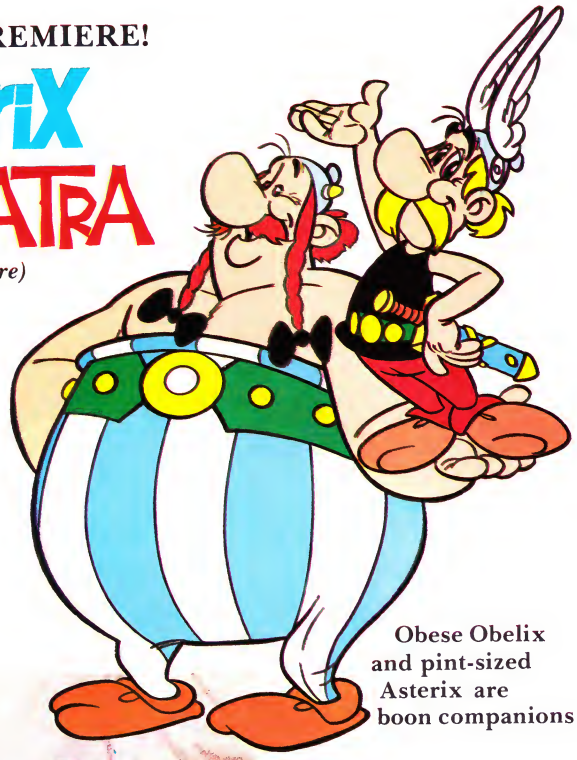
TELEVISION PREMIERE!

Asterix & CLEOPATRA

(Animated Feature)

Introducing Asterix, a spunky Gaulish soldier charged with protecting his small settlement from Roman barbarians in 50 B.C. His tubby buddy is named Obelix.

Making his American debut on The Disney Channel, Asterix was born as a comic strip character in a French magazine, "Pilote," during the 1960s. The little warrior and his corn-fed sidekick were an instant hit.



Obese Obelix and pint-sized Asterix are boon companions

Cleopatra decrees a pleasure palace for Julius Caesar

Asterix knows that what Cleopatra asks for is what she gets

The cartoon strip appeared while General Charles de Gaulle was president of France, and the fact that Asterix the Gaul (get it?) kidded national politics added to its popularity. The strip was soon translated into 20 languages and widely syndicated. A flood of Asterix comic books and merchandise washed across Europe, and in 1976 the characters jumped out of the inkwell onto the movie screen.

"Asterix and Cleopatra" finds Asterix and Obelix guarding Cleopatra's royal architect, Artifice, while he builds "the most beautiful palace in Egypt" for Julius Caesar. It takes a wonder-working druid, a smart dog, and a lot of Gaul to untangle the snarls that follow.

The tiny terror will be seen in two more animated cartoon adventures on The Disney Channel: "Asterix the Gaul" and "The 12 Tasks of Asterix."

Rob Roy

(Richard Todd, Glynis Johns, James Robertson Justice)

England and Scotland, ever uneasy neighbors, are in turmoil by the 1700s.

The English have placed a German, George I, on the throne, and Scots highlanders are openly rebellious. Their outlawed leader, Rob Roy MacGregor (Richard Todd), is captured by the Duke of Argyll (James Robertson Justice) and held in Stirling Castle to await trial. Rob's patriotic rebels rescue him, touching off a firestorm of adventures that blazes all the way to the British crown.

Rob Roy of clan MacGregor actually existed, and his heroic exploits were reenacted for this rousing film in the Perthshire glens and highlands of Scotland.

TWO AGAINST THE ODDS

KATHY KARUKS is a Grizzly Bear

(Leslie Angus, Donnelly Rhodes, Rudy Lipp)

After failing at every sport she tries, Kathy Karuks, the shy 14-year-old daughter of Estonian immigrants, finds she's a good endurance swimmer. With her coach's encouragement she trains for a 32-mile swim across Lake Ontario. Only seven persons have made it, and at 115 pounds Kathy's the youngest, lightest woman ever to accept this challenge.

Against her doctor's warning, her parents' skepticism, and public opposition, Kathy starts the swim.

There are unknown dangers and even terror ahead. After fighting cold, exhaustion and the horror of an eel bite, Kathy meets her greatest obstacle when her father stands between her and victory. But Kathy Karuks proves worthy of her name which—in Estonian—means grizzly bear.

ONE OF OUR OWN

(David Gardner)

John Webster, a retarded 18-year-old, discovers the excitement of the outside world when he runs away.

After he returns home, his family must contend with John's need for independence. They enroll him in a residential school for exceptional teenagers, where he overcomes his fears, makes new friends, and develops the skills he'll need in adulthood.

Kids Make Films, Too!

Kids and cameras go together like lights and action! That's what teachers and professional filmmakers across the country discover when they tell elementary school children to "roll 'em!"

"Kids Make Films, Too!" presents seven short, snappy animated and live-action movies created by youngsters in public and private schools. Here's a delightful foray into worlds only kids could invent — worlds peopled by show-off potato chips, bike-riding hamburgers, super-sleuth dogs, friendly "wobots" and pollution-eating black holes—all operating by an ethical code ensuring that bad guys get trounced and good guys rewarded! Each film's as ingenuous and refreshingly straightforward as a kid's first letter to Santa Claus.

The fun and cameras roll

Kids film a fitting end for show-offs in "Double Dare"

Displaying a natural grasp of story and film concepts and plenty of enthusiasm, the youngsters wrote, costumed, directed, drew the animated characters and backgrounds, performed the live-action roles and shot the film!

New! ANIMAL WORLD

Wildlife movie maker Bill Burrud explores the world of animals, from the majestic lions of Serengeti to the "Loony Gooney" birds of Midway Island.

In "My First Safari," Burrud takes his young son John to the East African veldt. They trek across breathtaking country inhabited by giraffes, zebras and gazelles before sighting and trailing a pride of lions.

Next, Burrud crosses the Pacific Ocean to film Laysan albatross—the "Loony Gooneys," which invade Midway Island each November. These eccentric birds create problems for naval aircraft by clustering on landing strips. Their mass arrival is also unwelcome to the island's other feathered inhabitant — the sooty tern.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN SPOOFS THE MACHINE AGE

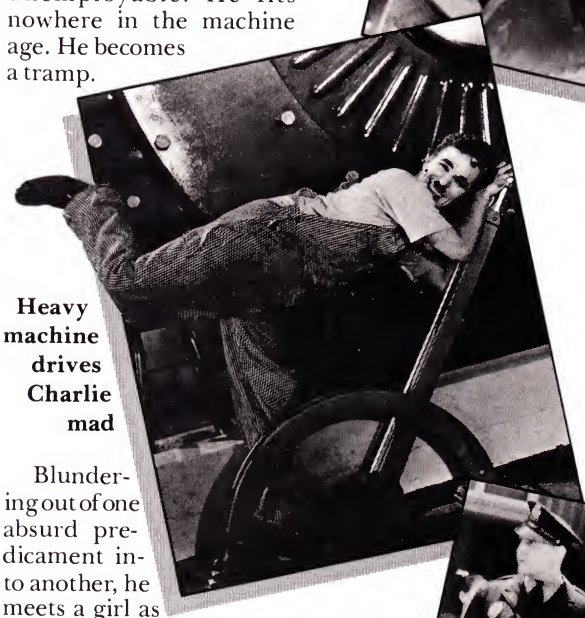
MODERN TIMES

(Charles Chaplin, Paulette Goddard)

To many people in the 1930s, automation was a bogeyman that had come to put them out of work. It was bad enough if you were a factory worker on an assembly line, worse if you were a tramp.

That's the premise Charlie Chaplin sets up in "Modern Times." Charlie plays a bolt-tightener on an assembly belt whose job drives him crazy. Although restored to sanity by getting fired, he finds himself hilariously and hopelessly unemployable. He fits nowhere in the machine age. He becomes a tramp.

Charlie finds a nut among the bolts



Heavy machine drives Charlie mad

Blundering out of one absurd predicament into another, he meets a girl as footloose as himself. They try to settle down. They call their ramshackle hut "Paradise"; Charlie primly sleeps in the dog house. But still they are misfits, and after escaping cops and welfare officers they walk toward the horizon—confident of a new tomorrow.

"The picture is a brilliant succession of gags and stunts, strung together on the priceless tradition of Chaplin himself," wrote critic Thornton Delahanty. "A rousing, rib-tickling, gag-bestrewn jest in the best Chaplin manner," echoed film reviewer Frank S. Nugent. "The cinema's First Immortal returns in a comedy for fun-lovers, egalitarians and philosophers," said Richard Watts.

Bear cub enjoys icy environment

From the timberlines of Canada and Alaska to the polar ice cap, a dozen top nature photographers traverse miles of tundra, mountains and surging rivers to record the lives and habits of Arctic wildlife in this feature-length Academy Award-winning True-Life Adventure from Walt Disney.

The footage produced on this rugged journey to the roof of the world depicts a panoply of animal, bird and marine life — much of it never before captured on film.

A herd of walrus loaf among the ice floes, monogamous grey wolves rear their young, ferocious wolverines reveal their slinky ways, white whales pass at sea, musk ox graze the steppes while caribou migrate across the tundra. The cameras also follow the lemmings — those strange, furry mammals of the north—on their annual march to the sea.

Donald Duck delivers a mix of comedy and common sense in this daily half hour of cartoon fun.

Don and Pluto spend a day at the beach, and get tips on swimming safety from Jiminy Cricket in "I'm No Fool in Water." Donald fowls up as a child psychologist when he tries to outsmart his nephews. Captain Katt badgers three little mice and gets caught in his own trap. Paul Bunyan and his blue ox Babe cut a mighty swath across the continent.

These and other cartoons enliven Donald's show.

"Happy Trails"

with Roy Rogers and Dale Evans

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans chat about their days as western movie stars. Roy recalls working with Andy Devine, whose cracked voice made him a popular comic foil in nine of Rogers' pictures, then presents "Grand Canyon Trail" (1948).

Roy and Trigger in action

This tale of mining fraud finds Cookie Bullfincher (Devine) persuading Foy Willing and the Riders of the Purple Sage to invest in a silver mine. They are victims of a plot hatched by Bill Regan (Robert Livingston), a mining engineer for eastern promoter J. Malcolm Vanderpool (Charles Coleman).

When Vanderpool's secretary Carol Martin (Jane Frazee) arrives to investigate, she is hoodwinked, hornswoggled and bamboozled by Regan and his henchmen. Only Roy Rogers, the one straight arrow in a crooked town, comes to her aid. At last, in a whirlwind finish, Roy corners the varmints who cooked up the scheme. They are defeated by his iron fists and the flying hooves of a fighting mine mule.

Dale and Roy share smiles

"Grand Canyon Trail" was the first western in which the Riders of the Purple Sage replaced Roy Rogers' longtime co-stars, the Sons of the Pioneers.

Mouseterpiece Theater

George Plimpton presents a half-hour of cartoons from Disney archives, accompanied by tongue-in-cheek comments in the best PBS "masterpiece" tradition.

Don's better self blows up

Plimpton's choices this month include "El Gaucho Goofy" (from the animated feature "Saludos Amigos"), "Little Toot," "Donald's Better Self," "The Vanishing Private," "Playful Pluto," and "Johnny Fedora and Alice Bluebonnet" (from the animated feature "Make Mine Music").

Showing throughout the week.

BOY FROM DEAD MAN'S BAYOU

A hurricane roars through the Louisiana bayou country, destroying a small church and sending its precious silver bell into the murky depths of Dead Man's Bayou.

Jeannot (Mitch Vogel), orphaned by the storm, enters the dangerous waters with his younger cousin Claude (Mike Lookinland), determined to retrieve the bell and donate it in his father's memory to the new church being built by Father Boudreau (John McIntire).

With the help of Charbot (Percy Rodrigues), a fisherman who designs charms to ward off evil swamp spirits, the boys locate the sunken treasure and challenge the vicious alligator that guards it.

While seeking the lost bell, Charbot saves one of the boys from alligators

WINTER FEVER

When the snow is falling and your temperature's rising, producer Warren Miller breaks that winter fever with skiing thrills and spills from around the world.

The cure begins with a run down a 14,000 foot volcano in Hawaii. Then it's slope acrobatics in Nordic Valley, Utah.

THOSE CALLOWAYS

(Brian Keith, Vera Miles, Brandon de Wilde, Linda Evans, Ed Wynn)

Cam Calloway (Brian Keith) has a dream he's willing to stake everything on.

The strong-willed Vermont trapper wants to purchase a lake and its adjoining marshland to establish a sanctuary for wild geese. To do so, he and his wife and son (Vera Miles, Brandon de Wilde) must fight the greed and narrow-mindedness of townspeople who want to turn the area into a profitable hunting paradise. They have money, prestige and power on their side—Cam has only his own determination.

Developers, creditors, and fast-talking loan sharks close in on the Calloways until Cam's dreams are as endangered as the geese he loves. The outcome proves how powerful one man's beliefs can be.

The Calloway's pet bear wakens from his winter nap

"Those Calloways" was filmed in Vermont and on the Disney Studio backlot where technicians duplicated the autumnal settings by building a New England town and a half-acre lake surrounded by 6,000 corn stalks, and hand-painting over a half-million leaves.

Bud grows salt crystals

"A Symposium on Popular Songs"

Ludwig Von Drake, explaining that popular songs reflect their era, takes a musical excursion through the 20th century in this animated featurette.

This entertaining cavalcade of pop music follows "Can Can" (See page 19).

"Bud's Garage"

Bud uses common household materials — — to grow salt crystals on pieces of sponge. This follows "Rob Roy" (See page 11). See page 25 for related kids' activity.

"Dumb Bell of the Yukon"

Donald Duck, as a Klondike fur trapper, is loaded for bear. He gets more bruin than he can handle when he steals a cub from its mother to make a coat for Daisy. This cartoon follows "The Boy from Dead Man's Bayou" (See page 16).

"Carnival Time"

Professor Ludwig Von Drake anchors a news report on the New Orleans Mardi Gras and Rio de Janeiro Carnival. On-the-scene coverage by Donald Duck and José Carioca shows street scenes, songs and traditions of the two pre-Lenten festivals. For more carnival fun watch Paul Anka's "Rio" show the week of February 26.

February 6, 17, 20, 26, 29

"Journey To The Valley of the Emu"

In the Australian outback a dingo pup and his mother are spotted by a boundary rider, who kills the mother.

The orphaned dingo wanders through an alien world of dust storms and killer snakes, until he joins an aborigine boy seeking the legendary valley of the flightless emu bird.

Guess Who's Coming to The Disney Channel?

The Guinness Book of World Records lists him as the most prolific composer of modern times.

He took three years of piano lessons in school, starting at age seven, then stopped. He considers himself a musical illiterate because he doesn't read music. Yet to date he has written some 4,000 songs, among them "South Rampart Street Parade," "This Could Be the Start of Something Big," "Picnic" and "Impossible."

He's a legendary comedian, musician, talk show host, actor and author of 26 published books. He's bringing his own show exclusively to The Disney Channel. Watch for him in April!

THE MISADVENTURES OF MERLIN JONES

(Tommy Kirk, Annette Funicello, Leon Ames, Stuart Erwin)

Annette Funicello and Tommy Kirk, teenage idols of the 1960s, are off on another madcap adventure.

Merlin Jones (Tommy), an oddball collegian with a high IQ, embroils his coed sweetie Jennifer (Annette) in a series of bizarre, troublemaking mind reading experiments.

One of the first lands Merlin in court, where he picks up enough mental vibes to convince himself the judge is a crook. But telepathy is inadmissible evidence, and in trying to build a concrete case against his honor Merlin dabbles in phylogenetic hypnosis. This enables him to draft Stanley, the psychology lab chimp, as an accomplice. Jennifer manages to keep her head through it all.

Tommy and Annette co-starred in Walt Disney productions for a decade. Their films include "The Shaggy Dog," "Babes in Toyland," "The Horsemasters," "Backstage Party," "Escapade in Florence" and "The Monkey's Uncle."

THE GUMBY® SHOW

Gumby and his flexible friends stretch 16 adventures this month from the prehistoric past to interplanetary future.

"Egg Trouble" finds Gumby in Dinosaurland, where he must cope with earthquakes, volcanic eruptions and stampeding prehistoric animals. In "Small Planets" he makes an excursion to outer space. Between these time-extremes he and claymates like Pokey, Prickle, Goo and the Professor get into trouble with raging bulls, flying aces and their enemies, the bullying Blockheads.

Flame Over India

(Kenneth More, Lauren Bacall, Herbert Lom)

The fate of India in 1905 depends on the rescue of a five-year-old Hindu prince from Moslem rebels.

Assigned to the task, British Captain Scott (Kenneth More) is able to escape with the child, his American governess (Lauren Bacall), and four others on a rusty old locomotive improbably called "Empress of India."

More helps Bacall

Moslem attacks continue as the train rolls through enemy country. But the main danger lurks on board, where someone is trying to kill the little prince.

This thriller was directed by J. Lee Thompson, noted for action films like "Guns of Navarone" and "McKenna's Gold," and was shot on location in India.

Dancers perform the once-scandalous can-can

Can-Can

(Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan, Juliet Prowse)

The high-kicking can-can raises Parisian eyebrows in the 1890s. When a serious young judge (Louis Jourdan) attempts to enforce a ban on the dance, he finds himself at war with Simone Pestache (Shirley MacLaine), owner of a Montmartre nightclub where the can-can is performed.

Simone gets caught between the amorous attentions of the judge and her lawyer (Frank Sinatra) — when she's not in court paying fines, that is. Maurice Chevalier plays a kindly old magistrate who enjoys the outlawed dance and helps get it legalized.

A rowdy collection of Cole Porter songs, exuberant Hermes Pan choreography for Juliet Prowse and dancers, and colorful Parisian settings enliven this adaptation of the Broadway musical.

Giraffe is among animals benefitting from new zoos

Disney Studio Showcase

Linda Blair introduces two films about captive wild animals and their welfare.

"Primarily Primates" is a San Antonio shelter for wild animals abandoned by private owners. It's a successful venture. Over a hundred animals are housed there, and the rate of rehabilitation is high.

"Keepers of the Wild" depicts modern zoos and the use of state-of-the-art technology to improve the lives of animals in their care. "New zoos" in Los Angeles and San Diego, and the 6,000-acre San Diego Wild Animal Park are shown.

Kelly qualifies as guide

ATTA GIRL, KELLY

(Beau Bridges, Billy Corcoran, J.D. Cannon, Arthur Hill)

Kelly, a German shepherd, makes a permanent impression on three very different lives.

Young Danny Richards (Billy Corcoran) raises Kelly as a puppy, hoping that she will become a Seeing Eye dog. Barely qualifying, Kelly enters guide dog training.

During training, Kelly has trouble transferring her love to a new master, Matt Howell (Beau Bridges). She runs home to Danny, which nearly causes her to be dropped from training school.

With much love and care, Kelly finally passes her guide dog test. Yet again she must accept and protect a new master, blind attorney Evan Clayton (Arthur Hill). He, however, is reluctant to accept her — until a dramatic incident affects them both.

Primitive Mbuti pygmy

THE EXPLORERS
"Pygmies Of The Rain Forest"

Deep in central Africa's Ituri Forest, the Mbuti pygmies live exactly as their nomadic ancestors did 6,000 years ago—hunting, gathering roots, and building simple leaf huts.

Into their remote world comes explorer/photographer Kevin Duffy. He films the women collecting edible plants and mushrooms and follows the men through a dramatic elephant hunt with spears. The Mbutis dance to the forest, which they consider to be their mother, father, provider, protector, and great eternal resting place after death.

EPCOT Center in Florida is the departure point for coast to coast explorations conducted by Michael Young and celebrity co-hostesses.

At Horizons in Future World, the hosts examine plants and agricultural methods of the future, and introduce an artist who paints "spacescapes." A presentation from CommuniCore depicts a nursery school for toddler geniuses, and viewers travel from World Showcase to San Francisco, where lawyers put historical personages and events on trial.

The EPCOT MAGAZINE family of tipsters — chef Joe Cahn, handyman Al Carrell, consumer advocate Frank Berry and plant doctor Marilyn Hencken — share their expertise throughout the week.

Home audiences can compare opinions with visitors at Future Choice Theater, where answers to questions like: Would you like to do your office work on a computer at home? (February 10), and What is your major source of news and information? (February 24) are instantly computed and electronically displayed.

MICKEY'S Just for Kids SECTION

Hi there!

"Roses are red, violets are blue, The Disney Channel has plenty of fun for you!"

Well maybe I'm not much of a poet, but it's the thought that counts!

Guess what? Donald Duck has a birthday in June! We're already preparing lots of surprises for him, and we need your help! Please send drawings of Donald so we can show some of them on The Disney Channel in June.

Keep your eye on the "Just for Kids" section next month for more news on how we're going to help good ole Donald celebrate!

Your Pal,
MICKEY MOUSE

Donald's CHANNEL CHATTER

I thought I'd let you know IN PLENTY OF TIME that a very important duck has a birthday coming up in June. I don't want to mention any names, but this friendly fellow is so likeable that I'm sure everybody's going to want to help him celebrate. So...if you just happen to want to tell this wonderful duck happy birthday, draw a picture of him and send it in RIGHT AWAY! Some of the pictures will be shown on The Disney Channel in June.

You can still send in drawings for "A SMALL WORLD," of course. Remember, all pictures should be in color on white paper (turned sideways). Write your name, address, age and the name of your cable system on them too!

Now don't forget my—I mean that super duck's birthday. Send a picture soon!

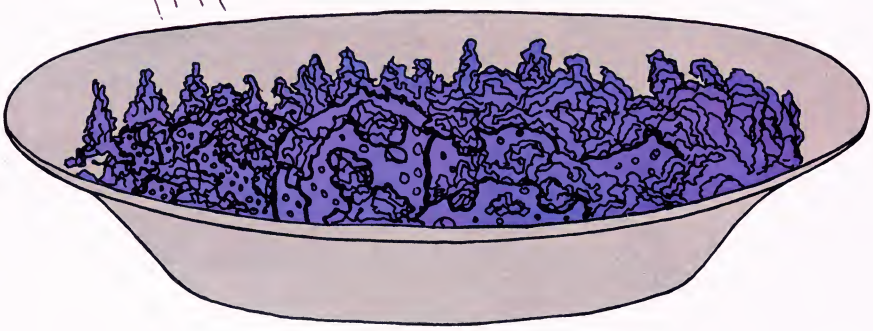
Crystal Gardens From Bud's Garage

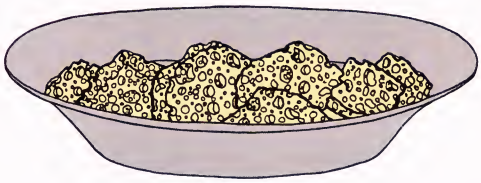
It's too cold outside to grow vegetables or flower gardens, so grow a crystal garden inside instead! On BUD'S GARAGE you'll see how to create sodium crystals following the directions here. Remember to ask an adult to help you handle the ingredients.

Do not make any substitutions.

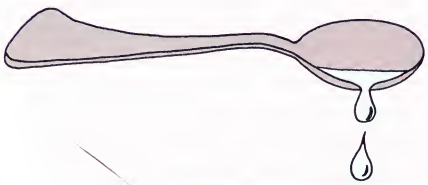
INGREDIENTS NEEDED:

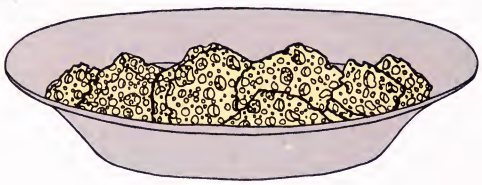
Porous material (a sponge or charcoal briquet)
4 Tablespoons of salt
4 Tablespoons of water
4 Tablespoons of liquid bluing
1 Tablespoon of ammonia
Food coloring (optional)
A shallow aluminum or glass pie pan or bowl





DIRECTIONS: If you are using a sponge, tear it into small pieces and put the pieces in a bowl. (If you're using a charcoal briquet, just put it in the bowl.)





Mix ingredients and spoon over the briquet or sponge. Sprinkle with food coloring.

Wait. In about 4 hours, crystals should begin to form. Look like outer space rocks, don't they?

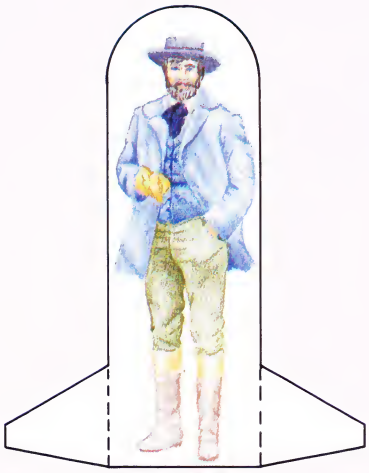
Collect Your Own FIVE MILE CREEK Movie Set



Jack Taylor

Maggie Scott

Pretend you're backstage with the cast and crew as they get ready to roll the cameras for another FIVE MILE CREEK adventure. Make up your own action-packed stories, or reenact the ones you've seen.

After you've completed the activities on the other sides, carefully remove these pages and glue them to lightweight cardboard (a file folder is good). After the glue has dried, cut along solid lines and fold along dotted lines. Next, overlap points A and B behind the coach and points C and D between the lead horses and tape or glue. Now, insert both E tabs into the E slots. You're ready to ride!

Save the pieces and look for more to add to your collection next month.

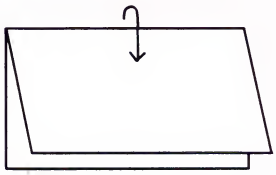
Mickey's Make Your Own Valentines

Handmade valentines began to appear in the U.S. around 1740. Some of the most beautiful were created by Pennsylvania-Germans using the paper cutting and pin-prick design methods shown here. By 1850 machine-made valentines took the place of handmade ones. Today, taking the time to make a card yourself is a very special way to say "I love you!"

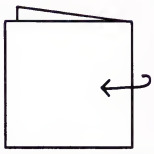
MATERIALS: Red construction paper, scissors, white paper that's easy to fold (like typing paper), glue, straight pin, watercolors & paintbrush (optional), scraps of ribbon or lace (optional).

DESIGN #1

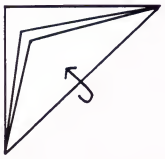
1. Cut a square (any size) from white paper.
2. Fold like this.



3. Then like this.

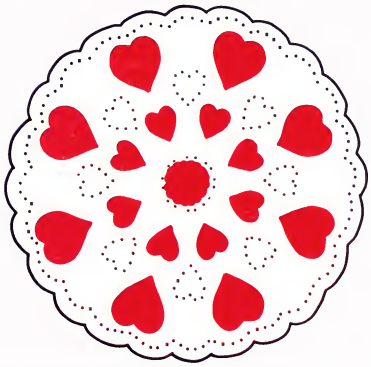


4. NOW, holding paper in same position as shown, fold diagonally like this.



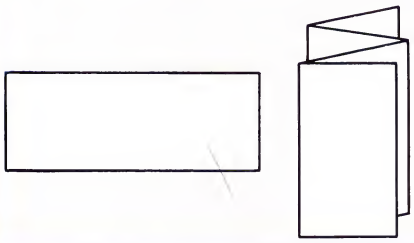
5. Cut curved line as shown. Cut a design like the one here.

6. Unfold paper and smooth gently. Put on top of an old magazine, then use a straight pin to prick a design or letters. Glue cutout to folded red construction paper.

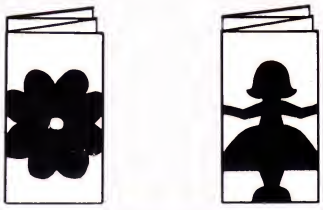


DESIGN #2

1. Cut a long rectangle of paper (wide ribbon works well too.) Accordion fold like this.



2. Cut a simple design such as hearts, flowers or simple figures. Be careful to keep designs attached at fold line.



3. Unfold. Decorate with paint or pin-pricks. Glue to red or pink construction paper.

A PICTURE MIXTURE!

The gang got together to celebrate Valentine's Day and Donald wants to take a picture with his new camera to remember the occasion. But somehow he's gotten everyone mixed up. Help Donald match everyone's head and feet correctly by drawing lines through the banner to connect them. Then say "CHEESE!"

Watch DONALD DUCK PRESENTS weekday afternoons and weekend mornings.

Dear Friends,

By your letters, you seem to be really enjoying "Five Mile Creek"! I know I am! By now I feel the characters are old friends. I find myself wondering what Maggie's husband has been up to all these months, and whether Con and Kate will fall in love. It's fun getting so involved with a show.

Did I tell you that the Australian Express in "Five Mile Creek" is an actual antique Concord stagecoach? It took John Mansbridge, director of the art and set decorating departments for Walt Disney Productions, months to find one. And before renovation even began, weeks of research were spent determining the right colors, upholstery—even how to lubricate the wheels and axles! John says it's probably the most authentic working stagecoach in the world today.

This month there are a couple of really special programs you shouldn't miss. "White Wilderness" and "From Disney, With Love" are bound to be family favorites.

"White Wilderness" is one of our Academy Award-winning True-Life Adventures. Visually, it's just stunning—and it has some very amusing moments too. I always remember the scene where that huge polar bear tumbles down a snow bank ...maybe you know the one I mean.

Talking about funny scenes, "From Disney, With Love" is loaded with them. I think my favorite is from "Bambi," when Bambi, Thumper and Flower get "twitterpated."

I'd love to hear about your particular favorites this month, so write soon!

Best regards,
Linda

HOW "A SMALL WORLD" WORKS

Thank you for considering my son's drawings (enclosed). We realize that from the thousands of pictures you probably receive, you're only able to select a few for Disney Channel airtime. However, if Neal's picture should be chosen, would we have any way of knowing when it would be shown?

Suzann Starr
Lodi, CA

Should Neal's charming picture of "The Happy Summer Day in the 100 Acre Wood" be chosen, you will receive a card which tells you the month in which it will be shown.

LONGER HOURS

I work second shift at a hospital and don't get home until midnight. I am tired of winding down with network TV. Have you considered a late night film for us night owls?

Carole Biletnikoff
Erie, PA

Right now, we're finalizing plans to extend The Disney Channel viewing hours. We expect to have the extended hours in place by spring. I'll keep you posted.

SUBSCRIBER VALENTINES TO THE DISNEY CHANNEL

My son, who is deaf, was so excited about your film, "Amy"! I'm national director of the Hearing and Tinnitus Help Association, and in our next newsletter I'm going to inform them about "Amy" being featured on The Disney Channel.

Thank you for such a heartwarming and wonderful show about the deaf.

Dr. Paul Yanick
Iselin, NJ

Being a one-parent family is difficult because it's hard to find constructive time together. The Disney Channel has given us many activities we can enjoy together. Thank you.

Pamela McKinney
Gastonbury, Ct.

Congratulations! The Disney Channel is all I hoped it would be. Having heard about it while visiting Walt Disney World last year, our only disappointment has been that we had to wait so long for it to become available in our viewing area.

Thank you for providing this kind of family entertainment.

Paul Raez
Warren, OH

Pooh is everyone's Valentine pal.

I really enjoy your participatory shows such as "You and Me, Kid," "Welcome to Pooh Corner," and "Mousercise." I want my children to learn to do rather than just watch. These activities and those mentioned in The Disney Channel Magazine remind me of things I taught in preschool that I can now teach my oldest child. Thank you for helping us take the time to do instructive things together.

FILMS ENCOURAGE READING!

Thank you for the "Find It In The Library" column in "Just For Kids." I plan to make a book out of the section to use when my children are older. We've been going to the library to read the books related to the shows we've seen on The Disney Channel. Also—we were wondering what the song is that they whistled and played in "Third Man on the Mountain"?

Carol Bramblett
Spartanburg, SC

The song from "Third Man on the Mountain" is called "Climb the Mountain." I'm delighted to hear that Disney Channel films and shows are leading the way to reading enjoyment for you and your family. That's just great!

Exploring the Archives

Dave Smith, archivist for Walt Disney Productions, answers questions and provides information about the studio's history and its productions.

I know the Mickey Mouse Club's Annette made many films while she was under contract to Disney. Where did he discover her?
–T. H., New Orleans, La.

Norman Grabowski annoys Annette in "Misadventures of Merlin Jones"

When Annette Funicello was 12 years old, she appeared on an amateur program at the Starlight Bowl in Burbank, California. Walt Disney happened to catch the performance, entitled "Ballet vs. Jive," and this led to her selection as one of the original Mouseketeers. Her first appearance as a Mouseketeer was at the opening of Disneyland on July 17, 1955.

What are the most valuable Disney comic books? –R.S., New York, N.Y.

There are four Disney comics which, according to Robert M. Overstreet's Comic Book Price Guide, are worth over $2,000 each in mint condition: "Walt Disney's Comics & Stories," Vol. I, no. 1 (1940); "Donald Duck Finds Pirate Gold," no. 9 (1942); "Donald Duck March of Comics," no. 4 (Maharajah Donald, 1947); and "Donald Duck Tells About Kites" (utility company giveaway, 1954). Do you have any of these in your attic?

My eight-year-old son is a devoted fan of the "Zorro" series. He has asked for a Zorro wristwatch. Is there now or has there been such a thing?
–L.E.M., Northfield, Ohio

There was indeed a Zorro wristwatch but it was made a long time ago, in 1958, and there are no more available. Occasionally the watches turn up at antique shows, but they are usually fairly high-priced.

DISNEY CHANNEL TRIVIA

..."Candleshoe" (see page 8) was Jodie Foster's fifth movie for Disney. She had made her movie debut in Disney's "Napoleon and Samantha" in 1972.

...This year is the 30th anniversary of the beginning of Walt Disney's first television series. He was one of the first movie producers to have anything to do with the new medium. The series went on to become the longest-running primetime series ever.

..."Rob Roy" (see page 11) was the last of four live-action features Walt Disney made in England in the early 1950s, utilizing blocked funds, earned by earlier Disney releases, that he was unable to take out of the country.

...Belle Montrose, mother of a famous musician-comedian-writer-variety show host, made her movie debut at age 74 in Disney's "Absent-Minded Professor." Watch for her son's debut on The Disney Channel in April!

"HOLD FAST TO DREAMS..."

Although the characters in "Those Calloways," "Kathy Karuks Is a Grizzly Bear" and "Candleshoe" are very different, they do share one thing in common—a stubborn determination to accomplish what they've set out to do!

Do you admire their singlemindedness? Do you have goals or dreams which are as important to you? After you and your family have watched these shows, ask each other these questions. Who knows—you may discover some dreams you didn't know were there!

THOSE CALLOWAYS

1) Cam risks the family's financial security for his dream. Should he have used the mortgage money to purchase the lake? Why or why not? Do people have the right to expect others to sacrifice for their dreams?

KATHY KARUKS IS A GRIZZLY BEAR

2) Kathy and her coach decide not to tell her parents that the Doctor thinks she's not ready to make the long swim. Was that decision justified by her dreams or not? Under what circumstances should people be willing to alter, delay or even give up their goals?

CANDLESHOE

3) At first, Casey's just out for herself, but she soon learns an important lesson about cooperation. Are there times when group efforts are more important than individual hopes, plans and accomplishments?

AND JUST FOR FUN...

4) Do you know the dreams of the other members of your family? Have you told them yours?

THE EDISON TWINS

It's a new formula for mystery:

One planner. One inventor. One creative solution.

Tom and Ann Edison have a zest for science and problem solving.
They love video games, movies and sports.
They tolerate "Igor," their bumbling kid brother.
Beginning in March and continuing for 13 episodes, The Edison Twins (and Igor) use science to solve mysteries and your youngsters get involved in the process.
